Section 2:

The AIESEC Brand Overview

Our Tagline

A tagline is defined as a reiterated phrase identified with an individual, group, or product.

In the case of AIESEC, our tagline is:

"Activating youth leadership since 1948."

The tagline captures our essence as an organization that develops youth leadership while strengthening the brand trust through the reference to the year the organization has been founded.

Through our opportunities for volunteering abroad, we develop youth leadership while mobilizing youth and like-minded organizations to achieve the SDGs.

Through our professional opportunities for working abroad, we develop youth leadership while working towards youth employability together with other organizations across the world.

Through membership opportunities, we develop youth leadership by enabling young people to live an experience that will help shape a better future for themselves and others.

Our Personality

Brand personality is a set of human characteristics that are attributed to a brand name. A brand personality is something to which the consumer can relate.

"We are global independent non-partisan and not-for-profit

We do not discriminate on the basis of gender, sexual orientation, disabilities, creed, religion, nor on the basis of national, ethnic, or social origin."

Global

We are present in all parts of the world and our global network strives to make the world a better place through leadership development and peace, while standing up for fundamental human rights.

Independent

We are free to set our own goals and pursue them, being independent.

Non-partisan

We choose peace above all and therefore do not follow any political tendency or party.

Not-for-profit.

All of the money earned by or donated to AIESEC is used in pursuing the organization's objectives and keeping it running, hence we are a not-for-profit.

Since we are open to engaging in dialogue on issues in our world, and bring together various perspectives, we can talk about current world topics, but keeping in mind our communication principles:

In our engagements with the topics we care about, no matter whether content format, we strive to be simple in order to be understood and genuine in order to be trusted, while keeping leadership at the center.

We always focus on a positive contribution, ensure diversity and reject discrimination in any form.

For deciding if something should be talked about or not as AIESEC, please keep in mind the principles as well as the FAQ in this guide.

As for Fundamental Human Rights, it is understood by all the rights included in the UN's Universal Declaration of Human Rights with annotations, which you can find here.

Our Brand Tone

A brand tone of voice both embodies and expresses the brand's personality and set of values. It's about the people that make up the brand and their collective behavior.

The brand voice we use in AIESEC is the collective voice of our membership across the world, and it is shown both through our tone and our behavior:

We are a network of young people, an organization made by youth, for youth.

We are always there to encourage finding new solutions and ideas for current world issues and prepared to support youth, no matter their background.

Our values guide us in our everyday behavior, and we align our brand tone to our six fundamental values.

Activating Leadership is the goal of our initiatives and programs.

Demonstrating Integrity is one of our fundamentals; this is why our communication is consistent and transparent regarding our decisions and actions.

Living diversity is crucial for us at AIESEC, rejecting any form of discrimination; we promote inclusion, respecting, and actively encouraging the contribution of every individual.

We create a dynamic and welcoming environment. we want everyone to enjoy participation in any of our initiatives and activities.

We strive for excellence and the highest quality performance in everything we do.

Our decisions take into account the needs of future generations - we take pride in acting sustainably and inspiring others to do the same.

Our Audiences

Our primary audience is Youth.

For us, youth is defined as anyone between the ages of 18-30. Any young person can participate in one of our programs or initiatives, regardless of educational status. Hence, we refer to "youth" or "young people" as our primary beneficiaries.

Please don't refer to students as AIESEC's only customers, our activities are targeted at all youth.

Like-minded organizations and people help us achieve our vision.

In our efforts to engage and develop youth, we partner with like-minded organizations that help us get closer to our goals and vision.

While helping us conduct our activities that create value for youth, we, in turn, create value for the organizations, compa-nies, schools, and people with which we partner.

Please don't refer to only companies as our partners. As mentioned above, there is a lot of diversity in the types of partners we engage with.

Section 3:

The AIESEC Brand Assets

Our Brand Name

AIESEC (pronounced eye-sek) was originally a French acronym for Association Internationale des Étudiants en Sciences Économiques et Commerciales (English: International Association of Students in Economic and Commercial Sciences).

The full name of the association is no longer officially used, as members can now be graduates and undergraduates or any young person from any background.

Members of AIESEC are known as "AIESECers".

The use of AIESEC in lower case
Over the past year, we have launched some campaigns where the name "aiesec" was used in lower case.

As the brand lost the element of communicating the acronym's meaning, and as we move towards a more modern way of communicating our brand, the use of "aiesec" in lowercase is allowed within campaigns. This means that "aiesec" can be used in lowercase as a brand idenitifier in your campaigns' content.

Never use "aiesec" written in lowercase when referring to the organization in written format. The official way of referring to the organization still is and will continue to be "AIESEC" in capitalized.

Vocabulary for Entities
AIESEC is a single organization running activities on a global scale. When referring to AIESEC in a specific country, territory, city, or university it is mandatory to use the preposition "in". This is why the only correct way to position your entity is as "AIESEC in XYZ"

PLEASE DON'T:

Call entities AIESEC XYZ

For more about AIESECs history please refer to the AIESEC History Book

The AIESEC Logo

Our logo represents how AIESEC enables young people to discover and develop their potential and head towards their future with a clearer and stronger vision for themselves.

It can be used only in horizontal position with any of its four color variants, depending on what looks more clear on your background or design.

PLEASE DON'T:

It should not be modified in any way and should always be used according to the guidelines in this section.

Do not change the font.

Do not change the official colors.

Do not squish or skew the logo.

Do not place our logo on a cluttered background.

Do not rotate the logo in anyway.

Do not change the opacity of the logo.

Do not add any element into the logo space.

Do not add shadow.

Powered by AIESEC Logo

The brand architecture refers to the structure of program brands within an organization and how these are related to or differentiated from one another within the portfolio.

AIESEC uses an Endorsed Brand Architecture , which is made up of individual and specific program brands linked together by an endorsing parent brand - AIESEC.

Endorsed brand architecture allows:

- Connecting all our programs to the single brand identity of AIESEC
- The success of one AIESEC program can positively influence the other programs in the portfolio. Consequently, the reverse is also possible.
- An easy plugging of new and upcoming programs. New programs can be introduced without association with the AIESEC brand if needed and can be introduced in the brand portfolio depending on their success.
- Returns on investment on one sub-brand reflect over to the other brands as well.

Program Brands are brands on their own, however they must always include the "Powered by AIESEC" logo as an endorsement.

PLEASE DON'T:

Don't use the Powered by AIESEC logo on local or national brands you might create, which are not officially part of the AIESEC Experience. You may use it with national EwA Brands that have been approved by the Global Structure.

DO:

Always use the Powered by AIESEC logo when using the individual program brands, or when referring to AIESEC initiatives.

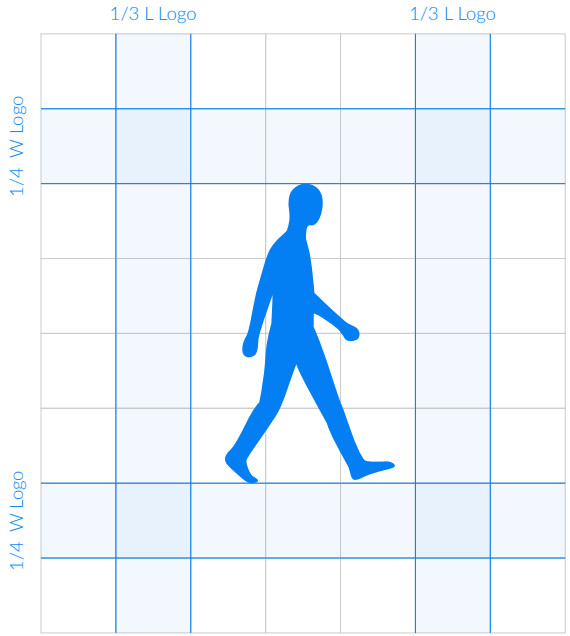

If adding a second logo to your publication makes it feel crowded, you can also use the AIESEC Human watermark (details in the following page) as a brand endorsement. This is especially fitting for cases where the endorsement is obvious - such as posts on an AIESEC channel.

The AIESEC Human

Since 1948 we have developed over 1,000,000 people through our programs and membership experiences.

For us, the AIESEC Human is a reminder of our purpose: looking into the future and moving forward.

It allows us to simplify our brand and be more responsive in the digital world and to what's happening around us. That's why the background can change to represent specific dates or events that are aligned to our purpose.

*Blue Line: minimum length and width of surrounding space

We only use the AIESEC Human in white or blue, maintaining a flat colored background.

The Usage:

Icon

The icon is a representative symbol of a brand. Always use the AIESEC Human as the icon for profile picture, favicon, or any medium that requires small space.

Watermark

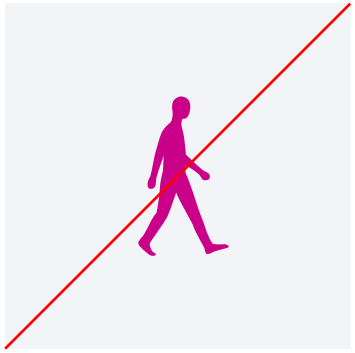

Our watermark allows us to be easily recognized while maintaining a clean and simple design. We created templates for you to make it easier.

Go to Section 7: Brand Resources for details.

PLEASE DON'T:

It should not be modified in any way and should always be used according to the guidelines in this section.

Do not change the official colors.

Do not squish or skew the logo.

Do not add shadow.

Do not place our logo on a cluttered background.

Do not rotate the logo in anyway.

Do not change the opacity of the logo.

Do not add any element into the logo space.

The AIESEC Colours

Our favorite color is AIESEC Blue. It's bright and energetic, representing our youthful nature.

Besides that, we use nine other colors to complement our AIESEC Blue, both digitally and in print. If you don't know what color to use, please use AIESEC Blue.

Section 4:

The AIESEC Portfolio Brands

The AIESEC Portfolio

The AIESEC portfolio is defined as the system of programs delivered by the organization.

It includes how we engage people with the organization, the set of programs we, together with our partners, offer to young people, and the relations with the alumni of the organization.

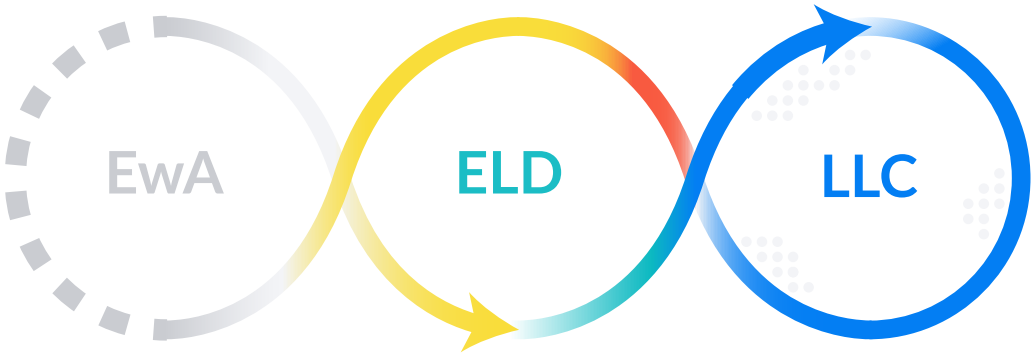

The purpose of the system is for young people to explore and develop their leadership potential, preparing them to make a positive impact in any sphere they choose.

3 phases compose the system:

1 Engagement with AIESEC
2 Experiential Leadership Development
3 Life-Long Connection

This Blue Book explains the Engagement with AIESEC and Life-Long Connection phases, for more detailed information, please consult the 2020 version of the AIESEC Experience Booklet.

This document provides the official value propositions for each of the ELD programs. These are not optional - using anything else other than these global value propositions is misrepresenting the brand.

1 | EwA
Engagement with AIESEC

The Engage with AIESEC (EwA) phase exists to engage young people with the concept of leader-ship development and with our organization.

Part of Engage with the AIESEC phase are all the activities and programs that aim to engage young people with the organization and with the concept of leadership development. These activities can be global or entity-level initiatives. They are recognized as part of EwA based on the fulfillment of the principles mentioned by the 2021 version of the AIESEC Experience Booklet.

The three EwA Brand Principles:
All EwA activities, initiatives, programs or products:

are Powered by AIESEC, therefore AIESEC International holds control and audit over the sub brands created in order to ensure the alignment and consistency of our messaging.
must be aligned to the brand elements present in this Blue Book.
must be strongly and evidently tied to our core as organization.

3 | LLC
Life-Long Connection

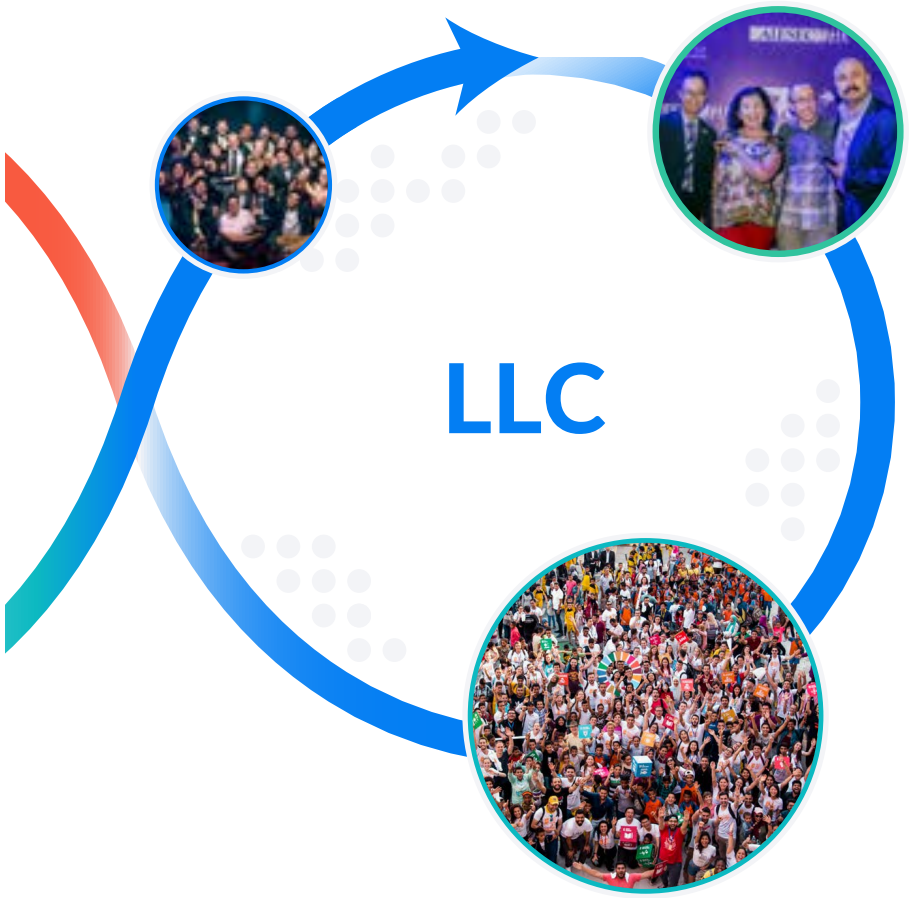

An alumnus of AIESEC, in general terms, is any person that has been part of one of the development programs of the organization and voluntarily joins (formally or informally) the Entity or Global Alumni Community. (Their national recognition also depends on the regulations of the Entity Alumni Associations).

The programs and initiatives of this phase are defined by the Alumni Association itself. Generally, they are divided in the next 3 categories:

- Alumni to AIESEC
- Alumni to Alumni
- Alumni to The World

The 3 main norms in terms of Branding of the LLC phase are:

1. The alumni organizations are legally independent. Therefore we aim to align the messaging provided by both organizations on their programs, products, and initiatives. We expect a gradual integration of the Brand assets of alumni into our Blue Book.
2. In case the Alumni association or the AIESEC entity aims to use each others brand, it needs to be consulted and approved, on the AIESEC side, it needs to be aligned with the Blue Book.
3. The activities, programs, and products of the LCC phase must be strongly and evidently tied to the three focuses of the Alumni associations, Alumni to AIESEC, Alumni to Alumni, and Alumni to the world.

Translating the logo

The need to localize brand and communication channels is very relevant in many markets. To ensure the most effective brand localization process, entities should adopt instructions to help control their brand message as it moves across borders.

For entities opting to translate AIESEC Prgram Brands (Global Volunteer, Global Talent, and Global Teacher), it is mandatory to use a literal translation - which means translating text from one language to another conveying the sense of the original. These translations must also be approved by the brand responsible in the AIESEC International team.

Profesor Global
Talento Global Voluntario Global

For entities based on bilingual countries or territories, it is recommended to either keep the brand in English or choose to translate it into the most predominant language among your target (youth and organizations).

The translated version of the logo need to keep the original placing and colors.

Section 5:
Branded Campaigns

Our Approach to Branded Campaigns

We are cooperating with other brands to amplify our voice and impact.

"Alone, we can do so little; together, we can do so much"

- Helen Keller

It's true, we are a global brand, with an audience of millions in over 100 geographical locations - our brand voice is already powerful. However, imagine how many more people we can reach when we team up with other organizations and individuals willing to fight along with us for a similar purpose.

For this exact reason, we are so fond of brand partnerships. They allow us to amplify our reach and achieve our common purpose.

When discussing brand partnerships, the most important thing for us is to ensure that we clarify this common purpose and make sure our values are aligned with those of the brand with which we are about to partner and co-create.

We must always choose our partners so as their values align with ours, and our collaboration helps us get closer to the vision of our organization.

It is of paramount importance the brand partnerships do not affect either brand's standards, integrity, and voice and do not, in any way, go against The AIESEC Way. The channels we use should also always be the most relevant ones to our partnerships, to make sure our audience remains engaged.

Co-Branding Principles

When setting up a co-branding partnership, there are several things that need to be defined.

1. Clarity on the common goal

The most important thing to define is the goal of the partnership. The common goal should be something that aligns with the purpose of all the organizations involved in the brand partnership. In the case of AIESEC, we can partner for youth leadership development, cross-cultural exchanges, and the Sustainable Development Goals.

2. Clarity on the measurement of success

The second step after knowing the specific goal of the campaign is knowing what the measurement of success will be and what co-branding type should be used. This can be employer brand-ing, external product campaigns, or other activities. Still, the measure of success of the brand partnership should be clearly defined for all organizations involved. Still, the measure of success of the brand partnership should be clearly defined for all organizations involved.

3. Clarity on the channels

Knowing the measurement of success from all organizations involved in the partnership, there can be clarity on what chan-nels, content types and messaging can be used to reach the desired outcome. This includes discussing what social media and internal platforms are the most relevant in order to reach the common goal.

4. Clarity on the content plan

Since there is clarity for the goal, the call to action, and the channels used, the next step is to evaluate the campaign's content plan. This includes determining what kind of content will be created, how will it be created, and withing what timeline. Therefore, in the content plan, the following should be clearly defined:

The messages being sent

The call to action

The content that will be created, and by whom

The hashtags

The timeline

In general, both parties must be involved in making the campaign a success.

Co-Branding Examples

Section 6:
Brand Governance

Legal Notes

Legally, AIESEC's generic brand is the one that needs to be protected first. It is a trademark registered in the EU27 and a lot of other entities in the network. The Global Plenary allocated a specific fund in order to ensure trademark registration and protection.

If you are not sure if the AIESEC Brand is properly protected in your entity, contact the President of AIESEC in your entity.

Other brands we use, such as 'YouthSpeak' or 'Global Volunteer' are not yet registered trademarks of AIESEC at the moment of this version of the BlueBook being published.

Vocabulary about Countries / Entities

Legal forms aside, AIESEC is a single organization running it activities on a global scale. This is why it is strictly forbidden to call entities "AIESEC XYZ", and the only correct way to position your entity is as "AIESEC in XYZ".

We never only refer to "Countries" or "Nations", as this will indirectly imply AIESEC taking a political stand. Use "countries and territories".

As this is a sensitive matter with potentially negative repercussions for the AIESEC brand, please ensure to follow the above-mentioned points in all communications - both internally and externally.

PLEASE DON'T:	DO:
AIESEC XYZ (Countries/Nations)	AIESEC in XYZ (Countries and territories)

Internal Policies
Notes

The Blue Book is your one stop destination in means of understanding the AIESEC brand, and finding all the information and resources that can inform your brand communication.

More than just a guide, however, the Blue Book acts as the reference document for our AIESEC Portfolio Internal Policies, hence why it governs the AIESEC brands and their usage. Failing to comply with the Blue Book means failing to comply with the Internal Policies.

The following is an excerpt from the official AIESEC Portfolio Internal Policies (APIP) document:

4. AIESEC Brand Policies

4.1 Definition and Purpose

4.1.1 The AIESEC Brand Policies aim to safeguard the global AIESEC brand in order to ensure the organization's identity can be consistent across the entities and aligned to the purpose and mission of the organization.

4.1.2. The official brand document for AIESEC is the most recent version of the Blue Book.

4.1.3. The brand policies applicable to all AIESEC entities are the elements outlined in the latest official edition of the Blue Book published by AIESEC International.

4.1.4. The brand descriptions, definitions, principles and visual assets are non-negotiable and must be followed by all entities using the AIESEC brand. This applies to both the AIESEC brand and the products or initiatives brands belonging to the AIESEC brand house.

Our Approach to Press and Media Communications

When we are making press statements, we make sure our tone is more professional and slightly more formal than in all other written pieces, because they are official communication pieces coming from AIESEC as an organization.

It would be best if you always tailored your tone of voice to the context and overall content of the media communication you are making.

Furthermore, you should always assess the relevance of the media outlet you are communicating to and make sure it is aligned with and appropriate for the purpose of your communication (a news outlet/ a blog/ a social media page, etc).

You can see some examples of press/media communications in the column on the right right-hand side.

1. General News
This is the most common type of press release. The idea behind a general news release is to generate traditional coverage in online and / or offline media.

2. Launch Release
A launch press release relates to the announcement of a new initiative, product, program, website, landing page, etc.

3. Event Press Release
This type of press release needs to clearly explain the details of an event. The goal is to have the event specifics in the media so the general public can learn about them.

You might want to release communication before the event, with a call to action as well as after an event, with an impact report and news about future events or initiatives.

4. Product/Project Press Release
When launching a new product or project that is of interest for the media and your public, you will want to write a press release to get communicate it.

5. Executive, Staff and Employee Press Release
A press release of this genre often includes information about a new person taking up an important role, or a change of leadership team or mandate.

6. Expert Position Press Release
This is a type of press release used to establish a brand's credibility in a particular field. The idea is to position AIESEC as a source of information to be contacted by the media at some point in the future.

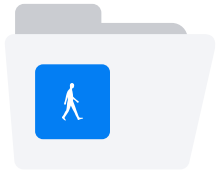

Please refer to the latest version of the PR guidelines on writing press statements/ releases and reach out to your MC or AI responsible for PR/External Communications when in doubt.

If you are looking for examples, please check the "press" section of the aiesec.org blog.

The PR Press / Media Kit

Press kits, also known as media kits, help explain the core facts about a brand to journalists/reporters/media in a neat, digestible package. The idea is that anyone visiting your website or press kit can figure out the key people, key facts, and key information about your business which can all be used in the media - without having to speak to you.

Until a press kit is added to aiesec.org, you can embed this one-pager into your website (if you are using any) and use it whenever you need to provide an external body (media / partners, etc.) with an overview of the AIESEC brand and a "one-stop destination" for the AIESEC brand assets.
